~~Having received~~ After receiving feedback from students and agreeing that the teaching method could be improved, James mentioned it to Mick, his colleague during lunch break.

Mick then recalled having purchased an app called Hack-Cess not too long ago for his daughter who thought coding was for boys only. He purchased the app after reading positive reviews about it on its Facebook page. He told James how the app being tailored specifically for young girls made it the ideal solution and they both agreed to bring up the matter with the Head teacher about ~~getting~~ ^{purchasing} a license for Hack-Cess so that all possibly students could download the app free of charge and use it as a revision tool. ~~The following week~~ The Head teacher agreed to give it a try and within weeks, they received positive feedback from students & parents alike saying how it has improved their learning. Hack-Cess is now a permanent
